

Pop Tarts

by Christine Gencorelli

A small rectangular toaster pastry

Sleeping

In his little metal bed

Like a sugar coated baby

His face bears

A peaceful expression

As he silently slumbers

He attempts

To roll over

In his steel encampment

But unfortunately

His time is up

He jumps from

His toaster of a cage

And escapes

Crazy Good